

303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 146

7 May 1944

Target: Friedrichstrasse Railway Sta., Berlin, Germany (PFF)

Crews Dispatched: 36 plus 1 spare

Length of Mission: 8 hours, 30 minutes

Bomb Load: 3 x 1000 lb M-44 G.P. & 5 x 500 lb M-17 Incendiary

Bombing Altitudes: Group A 25,900 ft; Group B 25,000 ft

Ammo Fired: 1,840 rounds

A total of 610 B-17s and 12 Combat Wings were dispatched against Berlin. 514 attacked the primary, dropping 800 tons of 1,000-lb. M-44 General Purpose and 443.5 tons of M-17 Incendiary clusters by PFF methods with unobserved results.

On the first mission to Berlin 330 B-17s were dispatched. Of these, 283 attacked the primary target dropping 425 tons G.P. and 273 I.B. with unobserved results. In addition, 25 aircraft dropped 37 tons G.P. and 30.5 tons I.B. on Prenzlau and 6 bombers dropped 9.5 tons G.P. and 5.5 tons I.B. on unidentified opportunity targets. Ten enemy aircraft were encountered on this mission north of Osnabruck. These made one attack, but no bombers were lost as a result. Flak on the mission was moderate to intense and accurate in the target area. A total of six B-17s were lost; three to flak and three to unknown reasons. In addition, 175 bombers suffered minor battle damage and 14 major damage. The P-47s, 30 P-38s and 156 P-51s, which provided escort to the bombers, reported an uneventful mission and made no claims. One P-47 was lost and one P-38 ditched in the Channel, the pilot being rescued.

Six Combat Wings totaling 280 B-17s were dispatched on the second mission against Berlin. 231 B-17s attacked the primary target dropping 375 tons of G.P. and 170.5 tons of I.B. In addition, eight B-17s dropped 7.5 tons of G.P. and 8.5 tons I.B. on unidentified opportunity targets. Nine enemy aircraft were encountered in the area, but made no attacks. Intense, rather inaccurate, flak was experienced over Berlin. One bomber was lost to flak and one to unknown causes. An additional B-17 crashed in England as the bombers assembled. 72 aircraft suffered minor battle damage and ten had major damage. The 128 P-47s, 74 P-38s and 120 P-51s furnishing escort reported an uneventful mission. One P-38 and one P-47 were missing.

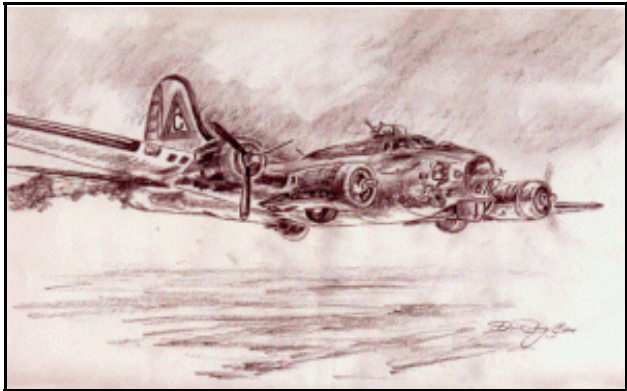

Thirty-six 303rd BG(H) aircraft were dispatched to bomb the railroad station in Berlin. One aircraft returned early, #42-31483 Bonnie B, 359BS-P (Lt. Moser), due to a lack of oxygen. They took off again in a spare B-17, but were unable to catch the formation.

Thirty-five B-17s dropped a total of 105 1,000-lb. M44 and 175 500-lb. M17 incendiary bombs from 25,900 and 25,000 feet. Bombing was done on markers dropped by the PFF aircraft through 10/10 undercast and results were unobserved.

No enemy aircraft were seen. Flak was moderate to intense and accurate at the target. Flak was also encountered at twelve other locations along the route. All Group aircraft returned safely with no casualties. Twenty-four aircraft sustained flak damage and one was damaged by friendly fire. Eight of these were major damage and seventeen were minor.

"It was completely uneventful except for flak over the city," Maj. Cole reported. "We didn't see one enemy aircraft and had no opposition when we dropped our bombs." Gunners said they might as well have stayed in bed.

#42-97254 Iza Vailable Too coming in with #4 engine on fire. Pencil sketch by Don Doheny.

1Lt. Donald M. Johnston, flying #42-97254, Iza Vailable Too, 360BS, landed at Molesworth with its #2 engine on fire. Flak had damaged the fuel line and the engine caught on fire when the fuel booster pump was turned on. The B-17 was salvaged after landing. Lt. Johnston later wrote, "At about 300 feet over the runway, the #4 engine became a ball of fire. Bob, my co-pilot, and I feathered #4 hoping to reduce fuel supply, with no help controlling the fire. As I cleared the runway, onto the grass side, my main concern was injuring any of our crew as they cleared our burning aircraft. As the crew cut venting holes over our wing tanks and hosed #4 engine on the right. Alone I departed through the cockpit side window to the left wing. The Ground Crew located metal pieces that damaged our fuel line, and Iza Vailable Too became spare parts."

Crew Chief Robert Heiliger (back to camera) and ground crewmen inspecting the fire damage to Iza Vailable Too.

OF COURSE — IT IS BERLIN AGAIN
Ed Miller's Memories and Recollections

This was my twenty-second mission, and of course, it was to Berlin again. The target was that elusive Friedrichstrasse Railway Station in the center of Berlin. Our bombing was by PFF radar and the results were unobserved.

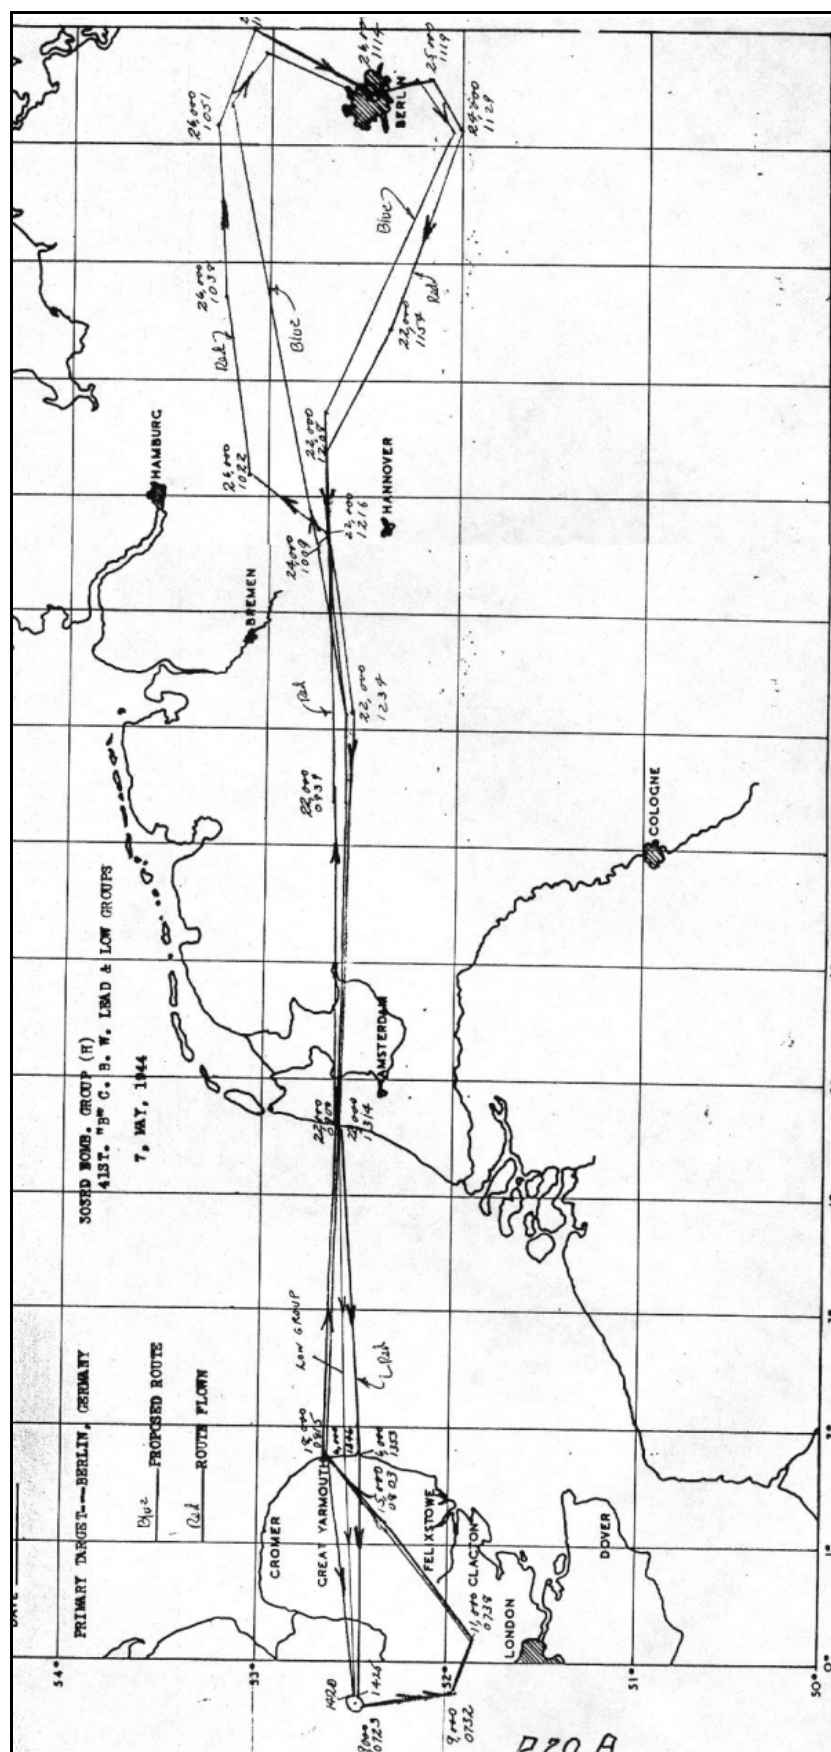

There were two separate missions flown by the 8th Air Force today, both targeting Berlin. There was a lot of battle damage to the aircraft due to intense and accurate flak. We carried a combination of three 1,000 lb general purpose bombs and five M17 Incendiary clusters.

Major Shayler was nice enough to put me on Tommy's right wing in the number six position. Somehow, I think that Tommy wanted me close to him so he could look after me. And I didn't object as he was as good a pilot as I ever flew with in my entire Air Force career.

My crew consisted of Lt John Francis as my co-pilot and the rest of his crew. His pilot, Lt Max Christian had come down with a case of tonsillitis while at Gander, New Foundland, and remained behind. So, when the crew arrived at Molesworth they were without a pilot. So I filled in for three or four missions while Christian was getting back to full health.

Lt. Nyle Cotner was the Navigator; Lt Rufe Parrilla was the Bombardier; Sgt William Kuczewski was the Flight Engineer; S/Sgt Arthur Tibbetts was the Radio Operator; Sgt Ernest Lobenherz and Sgt Hans Howald were my Waist Gunners. S/Sgt Jack Britt was my Ball Turret Operator (and was trying to get on my better side for causing the abort on 29 April) and Sgt Kenneth Elmore was my Tail Gunner.

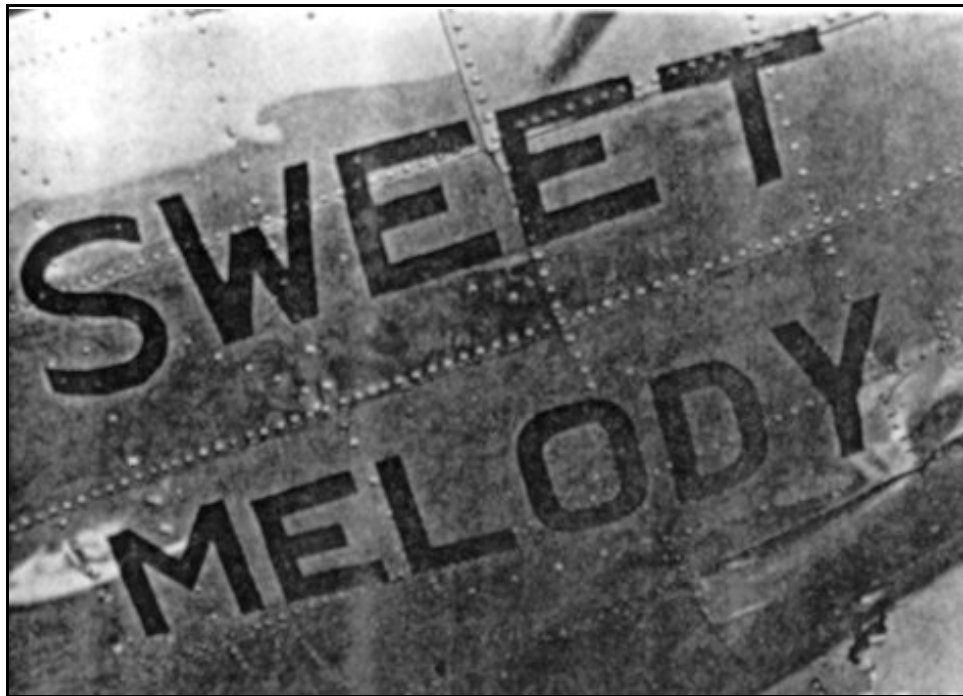

The mission turned out to be somewhat uneventful as we didn't see any fighters today. The flak over Berlin was another story. We put up 36 aircraft in two groups and 24 of them came back with flak damage, eight of them being of the "major" category.
