

303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 184

19 June 1944

Target: Military Installations at Fiefs & Predefin, France

Crews Dispatched: 20

Crew Members Lost or Wounded: 6 crewmen wounded by flak

Length of Mission: 4 hours, 30 minutes

Bomb Load: 36 x 100 lb G.P. bombs

Bombing Altitude: 25,500 & 25,000 ft

Ammo Fired: 0 rounds

Each of the 303rd BG(H)'s formations took off with 19 regular B-17s and one additional aircraft equipped with "GEE-H" navigation equipment. No aircraft returned early.

The primary target was a V-Weapon "No Ball" target. The secondary and last resort targets were "any bridge, road center, rail center, troop concentration, or other objective of military importance in the movement of enemy troops, not adjacent to a built-up area on which a visual sighting can be made."

Both Group formations, utilizing the "GEE-H" equipment, bombed the primary target with 1,513 100-lb. G.P. M30 bombs. Bombs were dropped from 25,500 and 25,000 feet through solid 10/10 clouds. The results could not be observed. No enemy aircraft or flak was encountered. All aircraft returned to Molesworth with no damage or casualties.

ROBOT PLANE INSTALLATIONS

from the book "25 Milk Runs" by Richard R. "Dick" Johnson

My diary entry for this day reads: "Pas De Calais, France Robot plane installations. Target overcast. No opposition, no damage. Observed flak. Altitude 25,000 ft."

Just yesterday, on Sunday June 18, a Buzz Bomb killed and wounded nearly 200 Wellington guardsmen when it struck their barracks. The V-1 missiles were now arriving in London at about 100 per day. Our last mission was supposed to be number 16, but since we aborted over friendly territory, we didn't get credit for a mission. We only flew two hours and thirty-five minutes that day.

Today we were loaded with thirty-eight, 100-pound general purpose bombs. These bombs were to be dropped through the clouds to try to destroy a V-1 (Buzz Bomb) site, using special navigation and identification equipment called "Gee-H." This type of mission was called a "No Ball Target" which is tactical rather than the usual strategic missions that we were trained to do. We were still trying to support the invasion forces and stop the V-1 assault at the same time. I suspect that this mission scared a lot of people, but did little damage. The forty aircraft of our group dropped 1513 bombs and were over enemy territory thirty minutes with a total flight time of four hours and forty-five minutes.
