

303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 230

18 August 1944

Target: Railroad bridges at Liege and Val Bendit, Belgium

Crews Dispatched: 39

Crewmembers Killed or Wounded: 2 wounded

Length of Mission: 4 hours, 50 minutes

Bomb Load: 10 x 500 lb G.P. RDX or 10 x 500 lb H.E. bombs

Bombing Altitudes: 26,800 & 25,700 ft

Ammo Fired: 23,685 rounds

Major Louis M. Schulstad led the 303BG formation to attack two bridges in Belgium. The lead and low Groups attacked the bridge at Seraing (Liege), the briefed target. The high Group bombed the bridge at Val Bendit, a target not in the morning briefing. One aircraft returned early when its #4 oil line prop governor broke: #42-39885 Sweet Rose O'Grady, 427BS (Lt. Drewry).

In the target area there were 2/10 to 4/10 cumulus clouds with tops at 5,000 ft. and some middle and high clouds. Visibility was 25 to 30 miles with a slight haze. The lead and low Groups dropped 293 500-lb. G.P. RDX bombs from 26,800 and 25,700 ft. Bombs hit on the center of the bridge. The high Group made a mistake in identity and bombed the Val Benoit bridge on the southern edge of Liege, about 4 1/2 miles east of the assigned primary target. This Group dropped 136 500-lb. H.E. bombs, making hits on the western bridge approach and some on the bridge itself. One aircraft bombed with the 351BG near Namur, Belgium, dropping 12 500-lb. bombs.

No enemy aircraft were seen. Flak was meager to moderate and accurate at the target. Eleven aircraft had minor and eleven, major battle damage. Fighter support was good. Returning aircraft had four casualties. Aircraft #43-38258 Forget Me Not Olly, 358BS (Lt. McDavid), landed at Hartelsham-Heath. All others returned to Molesworth. Lt. McDavid commented:

Our plane was hit by flak right after "bombs away." The wings, tail, fuselage, and other plane sections were hit, and the No. 4 engine was severely damaged. The prop could not be feathered because the oil line had been cut. Two of the oxygen systems were severed. Ball turret power was out and it had to be cranked up by hand. The plane could not keep up with the formation and we found ourselves lagging far behind. Other Groups passed over us and we reached enemy coast all alone and crossed the Channel unaccompanied. As a precaution we sent out fixes. Bombs were jettisoned in the Channel.

Lt. McDavid suffered a leg flesh wound. The bombardier, Lt. Pickett, was wounded in the back of his thigh. Both were hospitalized after landing. Lack of large size bandages in the first aid kits hampered treatment of the wounded.
