303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 241 12 September 1944 Synthetic Oil Plant at Brux, Czechoslovakia Crews Dispatched: 26 Crews Lost: Lt. Clemensen, 4 KIA, 5 POW; Lt. Mehlhoff, 9 POW Crew Members Lost or Wounded: Sgt. M.R. Bruce KIA, Lt. R.H. Parrilla WIA/DOW, Lt. K.H. Freeman, WIA Length of Mission: 8 hours, 50 minutes Bomb Load: 10 x 500 lb G.P. M43 bombs Bombing Altitudes: 28,300 & 27,800 ft Ammo Fired:16,195 rounds

he 41st CBW again attacked a synthetic oil refinery at Brux, Czechoslovakia. The secondary target was the Czechoslovakian aircraft components plant at Mejdek. The last resort targets were a German aero-engine plant at Eisenach and an aircraft repair facility at Zwickau. No aircraft returned early.

Twenty-three aircraft dropped 209 500-lb. G.P. M43 bombs from 28,300 and 27,800 ft. visually through 4/10 to 5/10 low clouds. Drifting clouds obscured the bombing results. Intense and accurate flak was encountered over the target. Nine aircraft sustained major and five, minor battle damage. Chaff had no effect.

The Luftwaffe put in a short, but destructive, appearance: 303rd BG(H) gunners received a good workout and three of our Fortresses were lost. Approximately 25 aircraft made vicious attacks. They were primarily ME-109s, with a few FW-190s and jets. Most attacks came out of the sun to attack high on the front and then peel off down through the formations.

Poor fighter support was provided by 238 P-51s and P-47s, being somewhat scattered and spotty. A big gap in support appeared when the enemy aircraft attacked and, again, in the target area.

360BS B-17G Miss Liberty #42-31340, piloted by Lt. Arnold Mosel, lost two engines from the fighter attacks northeast of Berlin. The Fortress flew the entire width of Germany and over occupied countries, without escort, at a 105 mph indicated air speed. Miss Liberty was on her 93rd mission and ran into flak from an enemy battery at Boulogne where a third engine was lost. It crash landed with one engine operating at Ruxquelier. France, under very difficult conditions. Bombardier, Lt. Parrilla, who was flying on his final mission, was seriously wounded during the crash landing. He was left in a Canadian hospital in the Pas de Calais area. He died on 15 September, three days after he was injured. The crew was transferred to an RAF station in England where the co-pilot, Lt. Kenneth H. Freeman, who had been wounded in both of his legs, was left. On the night of 14 September, the returned crew contacted Molesworth, requesting transportation home. Maj. John J. Casello flew to the RAF airfield and returned the pilot, Lt. Mosel and navigator, Lt. William K. Mundell, and the enlisted crewmen to Molesworth.

Sgt. Miles R. Bruce, tail gunner on #42-97311 427BS, piloted by Lt. John C. Griggs, Jr., had his oxygen supply cut off by a 7.9mm shell, and suffered fatal wounds. He is buried in the Cambridge American Cemetery, England.

Two other 303rd BG(H) aircraft were lost over Germany during the fighter attack. #42-31177 Lonesome Polecat, 359BS, piloted by 2Lt. Richard L. Clemensen, was hit by seven fighter attacks between 1100 and 1130 hours. They made a hole in the front part of the wing close to the No. 3 engine. Strips were flying off the wing. Another attack forced it out of the formation and it slid off and dropped down. The horizontal stabilizer was also hit and strips of metal were coming off. Then the wing caught fire. When last seen, it was in a glide, still under control. No parachutes were seen. The aircraft crashed near Berlin. Lt. Clemensen, 2Lt. Frank W. Stafford, Sgt. Eugene F. McCrory, Jr. and Sgt. Nick Kriss were killed. Lt. Clemensen and Sgt. McCrory are buried in Ardennes American Cemetery near Liege, Belgium. 2Lt. George S. Burson, 2Lt. James J. Crooke, Jr., Sgt. Kurt Schubach, Sgt. Lloyd L. Albern and Sgt. John W. Jauernig were captured and became POWs.

#42-107196 Temptress, 360BS, piloted by 1Lt. Arthur R. Mehlhoff, received a hit in its No. 1 engine and the propeller was feathered. It first dropped back out of formation and seemed to be holding altitude pretty well. It then slid off to the left and made a 180 degree east turn. When last seen, it was in a tight spin, apparently after the crew bailed out. Nine parachutes were seen. The aircraft crashed near Jachymov, Czechoslovakia. Lt. Mehlhoff, 2Lt. Edgar H. Nelson, 2Lt. Gaylon C. Williams, 2Lt. Harry F. Newcomb, Jr., T/Sgt. Donald L. Wagner, T/Sgt. Norman W. Thye, S/Sgt. Elwood R. Keeran, S/Sgt. Vernon H. Harms and S/Sgt. Benjamin V. Quackenbush were all captured and became POWs. Lt. Williams died in prison camp on 10 Oct 1944.

Aircraft #44-6316 (No Name), 358BS (Lt. Lay), limped back to England on three engines. The right landing gear collapsed when the aircraft touched the runway. A fire was quickly extinguished by the crash crew. There were no injuries.

Clancy's Journal by Steven Leahy

Wrapping the K18 cameras in insulation and carefully installing them into the radio room floor of the B-17s before each mission insured invaluable target and damage assessment during World War 2. Once the planes returned the film was quickly developed and sent to HQ. This was the primary mission of the photography technicians of the 303rd Bomb Group. John Howell Clancy of the 358th was one of these men. Only John offered us more. During the war he captured a visual history of life at Molesworth. From the photographic portraits of the brave flight crews, the tenacity and dedication of the ground crews to the light hearted moments with Bob Hope. His photographs always showed us the human element of the war.

This painting is an extension of John's vision; the moments just following the crash landing of 44-6316 after its mission over Brux, Czechoslovakia on September 12, 1944. More than a portrait of a plane, this is an account of her crew. From the pilot and Lieutenant William P. Lay who brought the wounded bomber safely home to the swarm of crewmembers that saved the plane so that it may too, continue its mission. John's photos have inspired me to continue his story and offer this entry into Clancy's Journal.
