

303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 289

23 December 1944

Target: Railroad Marshalling Yard at Ehrang, Germany

Crews Dispatched: 43

Length of Mission: 6 hours, 35 minutes

Bomb Load: 18 X 250 lb H.E. M57 & 2 x 500 lb M17 Incendiaries

Bombing Altitudes: 25,600, 26,000 & 24,200 ft

Ammo Fired: 0 rounds

Marshalling yards, communication centers and a rail junction in the rear of the Battle of the Bulge area were the assigned targets. The poor weather conditions only allowed for small forces to bomb.

The 303rd BG(H) dispatched 39 Fortresses to attack the Ehrang marshalling yards near Trier, Germany. The secondary target was another marshalling yard at Kaiserslautern and the last resort was a railroad junction at Worms. No aircraft returned early.

The weather was generally clear, but about 50 miles from the target high clouds and dense, persistent contrails developed. Thirty-seven aircraft dropped 623 250-lb. H.E. M57 and 67 500-lb. M17 incendiary bombs from 25,600, 26,000 and 24,200 feet on the primary target. Bombing results were excellent. Although most bombs hit outside the assigned area, some hit sections of the yards not previously bombed. Two aircraft jettisoned their bombs before reaching the target.

Wood Carving by William F. Adams

There was no enemy opposition and friendly support by 54 P-51s was very good. Flak was meager and inaccurate, but the low Squadron encountered some accurate bursts that caused minor battle damage to nine aircraft. Chaff effect was uncertain.

The returning aircraft were unable to land at Molesworth due to bad weather. Thirty-eight landed at Bassingbourn (91BG) and one at Gravelly, an RAF Base. There were no casualties. The air crews were sent to Molesworth by truck. Skeleton ground crews were sent to Bassingbourn to service the 303rd BG(H) B-17s.

The 303rd BG(H) also dispatched four Fortresses to other Groups. Two aircraft, #42-31574 Ole George, with 358BS Navigator Lt. Kenneth R. Carnahan, and #44-8351 (No Name), with 359BS Bombardier Lt. Thomas E. Quinlan, took off from Podington with the 92nd BG. Two other aircraft, #44-8256 Yankee Girl, with Navigator Lt. William P. O'Brien, and #44-8125 Sparky, with Bombardier Lt. Earl J. Malerich, took off from Chelveston with the 305th BG.

303rd Bomb Group (H) B-17s in support of the Battle of the Bulge

Battle of the Bulge

The Battle of the Bulge, which lasted from December 16, 1944 to January 28, 1945, was the largest land battle of World War II in which the United States participated. More than a million men fought in this battle, including some 600,000 Germans, 500,000 Americans and 55,000 British. The German military force consisted of two Armies with ten corps (equal to 29 divisions). The American military force consisted of a total of three armies with six corps (equal to 31 divisions). At the conclusion of the battle, the casualties were as follows: 81,000 U.S. with 19,000 killed, 1400 British with 200 killed, and 100,000 Germans killed, wounded or captured.

Unusual Experiences of Lt. Harley D. Snider

The 20th of December 1944 all of England was weathered in solid and the 8th Air Force was completely grounded. While lounging in my hut in the 358th Squadron area, I was instructed to report to the Operations Office nearby, where forthwith I was offered an option that to this day seems incredible. Captain Lynch informed me that my brother, Sgt Evert Snider, was in the military hospital at Southhampton, England, and that a B-17 was available if I wanted to visit him. After trying to grasp what he had just said, I asked him to repeat and explain.

Captain Lynch stated all he knew was that authorization had come from the 8th Air Force. He said all of England was grounded, but if I wanted to try getting in some place near the hospital, take the Captain, who was our Squadron Supply Officer and a rated pilot, with me as co-pilot.

I asked what should be done with the plane and when I should return. He told me to leave the Captain with the plane and they would pick it up later. There was no date for my return, but they would need me when the weather lifted.

We took off in the soup and called Darky for a heading to a British field near Southhampton. When we approached the field on a runway heading and requested a flare at the end of the runway, we were curtly advised that we had been refused clearance to land as the field was closed. There were no options, so I advised we were making a 360 turn and coming in. They fired a flare and we landed under a very low ceiling.

I hitched a ride to the hospital and walked in to surprise my Brother just after the evening meal. Oh! What a reunion! I found him well. My family had received no mail from him since before my departure for the ETO in September 1944.

Evert was in General Patton's 2nd Armored Division. He made the landing in Algiers, went through the Kasserine Pass operation, Sicily, then to Europe and the breakout at St. Lo and on into France.

Some time later, on the drive toward Germany, he lost two tanks and crews on his last day ahead of the line. He was the last man of his original company and was relieved from combat duty and assigned to supply and transportation bringing materials to the front.

Later they screened the support troops for soldiers like him, sent them to the hospital in England for evaluation and rotation to the states. A Red Cross lady had contacted him in the hospital. He told her he had a brother who flew B-17s and would be in the 8th Air Forces. He gave her my last letter from the States with my temporary APO address.

I bunked in the Ward with my brother two nights and returned to Molesworth on December 22nd, in time to fly the mission December 23rd to Ehrang, Germany, during the Battle of the Bulge.

Mark one up for the Red Cross! Whatever was put into plan and why, I have no clue, but I will be forever grateful.
