

303rd BG (H) Combat Mission No. 341

20 March 1945

Target: Oil Refinery at Hamburg, Germany

Crews Dispatched: 39

Crews Lost: Lt. Taub - 3 KIA, 7 POW; Lt. Moore - 5 KIA, 3 POW

Length of Mission: 7 hours

Bomb Load: 12 X 500 lb H.E. M43 bombs

Bombing Altitudes: 26,000, 24,800, & 27,000 ft

Ammo Fired: 24,695 rounds

Major Glynn F. Shumake, CO 358BS, flew as co-pilot with 1Lt. Clarence J. Goodberlet in #43-38554 358BS Bouncing Betty III. Field Order target designations for the 39 303rd BG(H) B-17s were:

First	Hamburg, Germany — oil refinery (visual)
Second	Hamburg, Germany — another refinery (visual)
Third	Hamburg, Germany — submarine yards (visual)

In the target area there were 6/10 low clouds with tops at 10,000 feet and 1/10 to 2/10 cirrus with bases at 28,000 feet. Contrails at the target bombing altitude were light and non-persistent, but became dense and persistent as the Group lost altitude while leaving the target. Thirty-eight aircraft dropped 456 500-lb. H.E. M43 bombs on the second priority target by PFF with unobserved results. One aircraft dropped two 500-lb. bombs on the Nordhois airfield as a target of opportunity. Moderate to intense and fairly accurate flak was encountered at the target.

A force of 15 to 20 ME-262 German fighters attacked the 303rd BG(H) Forts for about 30 minutes as they came off the bomb run and started home. The enemy fighters pressed their attacks as close as 50 feet, sometimes zooming right through the formation. Most aircraft attacked on the tail level, although a few hit on the nose and from the sides. Good friendly fighter support, by 72 P-51s, prevented the ME-262s from making prolonged and coordinated attacks. Three 303rd BG(H) aircraft sustained major battle damage and seventeen, minor damage.

The ME-262s successfully downed two Group B-17s. B-17G #43-39160 G for George 358BS, piloted by 2Lt. Francis R. Taub, was flying on the right wing of the high flight leader in the high 360BS formation – the most vulnerable spot in the formation. Three ME-262s, the first Germany jet aircraft seen by the crew, shot off the vertical stabilizer on their first pass. On the second pass they hit the #3 engine and set the right wing on fire. During the attack some of the crew believed that Sgt. James L. Hollowell shot down one of the ME-262s – one of the few jets to be shot down during World War II. 2Lt. Charles P. Johnson (NAV) gave the pilot a course heading for Sweden, but it quickly became obvious that it would be impossible to remain airborne. The order was given to bail out and the Fortress went into a spin. The two pilots were struggling to gain control of the spinning aircraft so others could bail out. Lt. Johnson pushed S/Sgt. Warren F. Chrisman out the nose hatch, bailed out himself, blacked out and regained consciousness in time to pull the

Sgt. McWilliams was killed and is buried in Ardennes American Cemetery near Liege, Belgium. The men who bailed were all captured and made POWs. S/Sgt. Dugan had his big toe shot off. ripcord. He landed in a plowed field and proceeded north towards Denmark. He was captured the next day near the village of Bad Seiberg. The B-17 was about 1,000 feet below the formation and 3/4 mile behind when it exploded following the second attack by six ME-262. The explosion knocked out the plexiglass nose. S/Sgt Michael A. Dugan (TOG) went out the open nose. It was his opinion that the pilot and co-pilot, 2Lt. John T. Cooper, were killed as a result of the explosion. Sgts. The No. 2 engine was hit by two German jet fighters shortly after bombs away and immediately burst into flames. The oxygen and interphone systems were malfunctioning. The #2 engine was out and pieces of the nacelle fell off. The skin on the left horizontal stabilizer ripped off and ribs could be seen. Lts. Moore and 2Lt. James M. Barnett bailed out followed by Sgt. Joseph T. Ogurchak who landed near Bad Segeberg. The bodies of F/O Morris Mieslich, Sgt. William A. Weise, Jr., Sgt. William A. Brookstra, Sgt. Frederick Kohan and Sgt. Clarence A. Pesta were found in the B-17's wreckage near Bad Segeberg. Sgt. Brookstra, Sgt. Kohan and Sgt. Pesta are buried in Ardennes American Cemetery near Liege, Belgium.

Messerschmitt Me-262 "Schwalbe"/"Sturmvogel" Jet Fighter/Bomber

ME-262s — NOT ME-210s

Unusual Experience of S/Sgt. Leroy Faulkner

My most memorable experience as a member of the 360th Bomb Squadron, happened on the mission to Hamburg, Germany on 20 March 1945. I was the Togglier on Lt. Larry Tyler's crew. We encountered heavy flak on the bomb run.

Just as I said "Bombs Away," Larry started our turn away from the target. All at once, Lt. B. J. Hamm, our copilot called out, "ME-210s at 3:00 o'clock." I looked out and saw the planes streaking ahead of us and said, "Those aren't 210s, they are ME-262s, the German Jet fighter."

They harassed us all the way out over the North Sea. They were awesome as we could not track them with our turret guns—they were just "too fast." It turned out to be a very scary mission.

Throughout my World War II career, I never lost an aircraft recognition test. The night before this mission, I had visited the Intelligence Office and saw pictures of the ME-262 for the very first time. I shall never forget that mission!

MUST I THROW OUT MY ORANGE?

Unusual Experience of S/Sgt John Woolpert, 360BS Tail Gunner

Our mission was to Hamburg on the 20th of March 1945, and the target was the fuel supply for the new German jet, the Me-262. On the way over, we were hit by anti-aircraft fire which took out one engine.

We lost another engine over the target, and then an Me-262 came after us. It shot out our third engine, but I was able to hit the jet fighter from the tail position.

Flying with one engine, our pilot decided to try to make it back to Molesworth. In order to save fuel, he told us to dump everything that was not essential. While we were tossing things out, the navigator asked the pilot on the intercom if he had to throw out an orange he was planning to eat. This broke the tension and helped us through a very scary time. We made it back to Molesworth.
