

360th Bombardment Squadron

303rd Bombardment Group (H)
Molesworth, England
1942-1945

With the rest of the 303rd Bombardment Group, the ground echelon of the 360th Bombardment Squadron arrived at Molesworth on 12 September 1942. During a period of over a month and a half, these men tried to get everything in order for the arrival of the air echelon that didn't start arriving until 24 October 1942. All B-17s and their crews finally arrived at Molesworth on 5 November 1942.

For the 360th Bomb Squadron, their eight aircraft were en route from Biggs Field to Molesworth during the period 4 September to 24 October, 1942. These aircraft included: Ooold Sooljer, Yardbird, Wulfe Hound, Garbage, Thumper, Shak Hak, Snap! Crackle! Pop! and Beats Me. On board Garbage was the Commanding Officer of the 360th Bomb Squadron, Major Richard D. Callaway, who served from 26 July 1942 until he became ill in December and was transferred to the 3rd Station Hospital. He was succeeded by Captain Lewis E. Lyle on 31 December 1942.

Getting up and running at Molesworth was a big problem for all the men. Unaccustomed to the English way of doing things made it more difficult. There was a long wait for equipment and the necessary essentials to operate properly. But the leadership of the Squadron got them moving correctly and in the right direction. Master Sergeant Nicolai Hansen was one of those highly motivated men that provided this kind of leadership. M/Sgt Hansen was soon to received a "battlefield promotion" to Captain and was reassigned to another Bomb Group.

The organization of the 360th Bombardment Squadron followed the normal Table of Organization for Army Air Force Units. The major functions were S-1 (Personnel); S-2 (Intelligence); S-3 (Operations) and S-4 (Maintenance & Supply). Supporting sections included the Adjutant, Communications, Armament, Chemical, Utilities, etc.

All around the clock, the Ground Support Echelon of the Bomb Squadron was hard pressed to ensure that their aircraft and flight crews were ready to take off and destroy enemy targets. Some relief was possible when they saw the last of their B-17s lift off on their way to their target. But that was only temporary, as they knew that they had to get back to doing the things that would allow the Squadron to put another one or two formations of B-17s in the air the following morning.

Everyone at Molesworth was dedicated to the success of the mission, and all personnel serving in the Ground Support Echelon set high standards to make sure that all the required tasks were performed in a timely manner.

The number of personnel assigned to the 360th increased as the squadron received more crews and aircraft. Starting out with only eight crews and aircraft, the squadron grew until there were over 30 B-17s and crews assigned at one time. Of course, that necessitated an increase in the number of ground support personnel to support this increased workload.

All of the men listed above, as well as those listed in our Index of Support Personnel, were responsible for everything that happened in the 360th Bombardment Squadron in carrying out their mission of getting their flying crews in the air. They housed them, fed them, transported them, advised them, provided them with guns and bombs and flyable aircraft on many of the most dangerous missions flown by the 303rd Bomb Group.
